

Step into spring with Miglio

MIGLIO launched its spring collection of designer jewellery to consultants and media at a fashion show in January.

The new Rainforest collection was launched by creative director Jenny Miller who was inspired by the natural environment of her home in South Africa.

Miglio has a growing network of 700 consultants in the UK who were enraptured by the new designs and the natural materials and colours used... Swarovski crystal, burnished silver and gold along with amethyst and leather, all woven together in an exclusive range of necklaces, bracelets and earrings.

Jenny told the excited audience: "This celebration of life, in empathy with the earth and the fragility of nature is intertwined in this new range."

All the jewellery is designed and made in South Africa and a donation from pre-selected pieces goes to a local charity called Homestead to help street children and their families.

Editor's note: More from Miglio in the next issue.

One of the stunning necklaces from the latest collection being showcased by Miglio consultants.

